Who wants two years on the city council?

West Sacramento residents turn in their applications in hopes of filling a vacant seat

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Were you expecting very many people to apply to fill that vacancy on the West Sacramento City Council?

If you were, you were right. City officials received applications from 25 citizens hoping to serve out the remaining term of the empty seat, through November of 2016. The vacancy was created when former councilman Oscar Villegas accepted an appointment by Governor Jerry Brown to the Yolo County Board of Supervisors.

The vacant supervisor's seat, in turn, was made empty when Brown appointed Supervisor Mike McGowan to a special post in the state Department of Motor Vehicles.

The city council has opted to fill its vacancy by appointment, at its public meeting on April 2. First, Mayor Christopher Cabaldon and Mayor Pro Tem Mark Johannessen will pre-screen the 25 applications to choose finalists.

Here are the applicants, their neighborhoods and their self-described occupations:

■ Raquel Andrade, a resident of Turlock Street and a public relations professional and homemaker;

■ Bernadette Austin of Hearst Street, a project manager for an infill development company (she's now on the city's parks and community services commission);

■ Antoine J. Bastien van der Meer of Westlake Drive, an attorney;

■ Margaret "Peggy" Ann Bell of Maryland Avenue, a personnel specialist with the C.H.P.;

■ Wayne Boissicat of Anchor Lane, a mechanical engineer;

■ James Caughman of Delaware Avenue, an information technology developer and database engineer;

■ Corey Cummings of Rolling Green Drive, a retired state correctional administrator;

■ Nate Eckler of Pender Island Road, director of technology at a high-tech firm;

■ Kyle Glankler of Quail Road, who is in construction management;

■ Martha Guerrero of Barberry Place, a social worker (her resume indicates she is now a legislative representative for Los Angeles County, and she's a past city planning commissioner)

■ Dean Haakenson of Julian Drive, an analyst/paralegal for the state;

■ Nancy Heth-Tran of Graphite Lane, an associate energy specialist with the state energy commission;

■ Preston Jackson of

Tahoe Street, an educator;

■ Shanon Kern of Hume Street, who has managed projects at Air Force bases and is training to be a commercial pilot;

■ Jeff Lyon of 4th Street, a state government employee;

■ Karl Machscheles of Meadowlark Circle, a teacher (and former school board member);

■ Danny L. Moore of Headslane Road, a self-

GUEST COMMENTARY:

RCHS club goes Irish for charity

By Danny Thirakul
Interact Club, River
City High School

Thirty members of the Interact Club at River City High School helped out with the Shamrock Run Saturday, March 15, which ended at West Sac's Raley Field. The Shamrock Half-Marathon and 5k, sponsored by Blue Diamond Almonds, benefited Project FIT, a non-profit youth fitness initiative. The Triumph Cancer Foundation, a Sacramento-based registered 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization, benefited from the 5K.

The course began right outside Raley Field and traveled as far as Discovery Park to the streets of downtown Sacramento. Participants would see the First Aid Station positioned on 13th and F St. The last station they would see before crossing the finish line was on Front Street near the Auto Museum. They would then finish right where it started, but inside Raley Field. (Information source: <http://www.shamrocknhalf.com>.)

My duty as a volunteer was to work the Medal and Water Distribution station. As were all volunteers for that station, I was instructed to check in and be there at 7 a.m. After checking in, I headed straight for my station. To my surprise, though, there wasn't a supervisor there to tell the other volunteers and me what to do. However, there were staff members, but they only guided us in our ways of managing the station.

Since there was no real leadership, I took the initiative in leading the volunteers and a few Interact members. After I consulted with the staff, I then instructed everyone on what to do, assigning and grouping individuals with a task.

Homebrew supply, go-kart track are among new ventures

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Several new businesses are open – or almost open – in West Sacramento. Here are a few that caught our eye:

"The Brewmeister" has opened a shop for home beer and wine makers, at 1409 Shore Street in West Sacramento.

It's one of three "Brewmeister" locations owned by Eric Schmid, a graduate of the American Brewers Guild.

"Our new location is ideally located in the blossoming craft brew area of West Sacramento, within just blocks of Bike Dog Brewing Company, Yolo Brewing Company and Jack Rabbit Brewing Company," he said in a press release.

The shop offers classes as well as supplies; see www.shopbrewmeister.com or call 371-7299.

"Anytime Fitness" is opening a franchise fitness club in the Southport "Nugget" center, at 2055 Town Center Plaza.

The facility is owned by Rob Cambra, who promises the club is "convenient and affordable."

The public is invited to a grand opening party April 4 and 5, where they can get special deals, body fat testing, free massages and other perks. Visit www.anytimefitness.com.

"Go-Kart Racer" is running a little behind its original schedule.

A report from the company on Twitter says the facility at 1430 Enterprise Blvd. is "working very hard designing our tracks and finishing interior details."

The go-kart business plans 48,000 square feet of track space and about 17,000 square feet of arcade and office space.

You can follow its development on Twitter at @gokarttracersac or on Facebook.

Police responded to a complaint about a homeless camp at F and 6th Streets. An officer reports that a 50-year old woman there "saw me, concealed herself behind a tree and began to dump property from her person. Located on the ground was a hard eyeglass case containing a suspected methamphetamine pipe."

The woman was arrested.

March 18, 5:30 p.m.

Police responded to an argument between parents and their 28-year old son in a north-city home. The son was "throwing and breaking property."

When the parents got in the car to get away, the son tried to deflate their car tires. The father, a cancer patient, tried to stop him, and was pushed and scratched. The son threatened to kill the pair during the altercation. He left, but later returned.

Police detained him and, when he did not obey commands, they pepper-sprayed him and took him into custody.

March 18, 8:15 p.m.

A woman reported a home burglary on Jasmine Avenue. Taken were some spare change and a gym bag, for a $57 loss.

March 18, 9:32 p.m.

A West Capitol resident reported being in a bathroom, when a 21-year old man (possibly an acquaintance) entered -- and racked the slide on a gun he was carrying. Police responded, and determined the gun was a "replica."

The man wielding it had "bloodshot watery eyes, slurred speech and was unsteady on his feet." He was arrested for being too drunk to care for himself.

Just blame my underdeveloped frontal lobe

Every now and then a friend or a family member or a News-Ledger subscriber will drop by the office and leave a book or magazine for me to read with the hope that I might be able to get a good column idea from it. Such was the case a while back when a very nice lady dropped off a half-dozen or so of her old New Yorker magazines for me to thumb through. More specifically, she wanted to show me some of the funny cartoons that were in them and as she was doing so, I began to notice that her sense of humor and mine were quite different. For instance, one of the cartoons I really liked had a woman all dressed up like she belonged in a Tiffany ad saying to a pharmacist at a drugstore counter, "Excuse me, do you have nicotine patches in menthol?" but the nice lady thought it was more silly than funny. And there was also a cartoon I loved that had two old people rocking on a porch with the elderly man saying, "No dear, I don't want to live forever, but I'm not exactly thrilled with the idea of being dead forever, either", which the nice lady thought was too dark in terms of black humor. Anyway, as the differences in our senses of humor became more obvious, I suddenly found myself thinking back to a long ago conversation I had with my daughter about such things that went like this:

"Dad, I think I've finally figured out why most men have such a warped sense of humor," proudly announced my daughter. "Warped?" I asked defensively.

"Well, juvenile then."

"I don't have a warped or juvenile sense of humor," I said with conviction.

"Oh yes you do."

"Oh no I don't!"

"You think the Three Stooges are funny, don't you?"

"Of course I do."

"And you and your brother almost fall out of your chairs laughing every time you watch those old black and white re-runs of them on television, don't you?"

"We sure do. They're hilarious!"

"I rest my case."

"You don't like the Three Stooges?" I asked in amazement.

"They're idiots."

"But you have to admit, they're very funny idiots."

"No they're not. They slap each other, make gross noises, have food fights, and poke each other in the eye. Now what in the world is funny about any of that?"

"Is there a point to this?" I finally decided to ask.

"Here," she said, handing me a section of the newspaper I never look at, "read the article at the top of page 4."

"Which one?"

"The one that explains why men think burping, passing gas and mooning someone is funny."

As I began to read, I learned that the newspaper article my daughter wanted me to read was written by a woman named Usha Lee McFarling and was entitled "Scientists find where punch line hits brain." In it, Ms. McFarling wrote, "Amid all the marvelous things we humans can do with our big brains — multiply fractions, write sonnets, design Web pages — none is quite so mysterious as our ability to enjoy a good joke."

The article went on to say, "Studies of gender differences in humor show women are more likely to enjoy jokes that involve longer narratives, personal information and memories. They seem to be better in taking in linguistic information, making comparisons, solving problems, and connecting intellectual knowledge with their emotions, all of which are needed to appreciate good humor. Men, however, are more likely to enjoy humor scientists would term slapstick: The Three Stooges, men in drag, and bare butt jokes."

"What is a bare butt joke?" I asked my daughter.

"You know, gross stuff — bathroom humor."

It's not our fault: men just come pre-wired to enjoy jokes about passing gas.

Not to mention the Three Stooges.

"Oh," I said, slightly disappointed.

"So," explained my daughter, "that article says a woman's right frontal lobe — which is largely responsible for a well-developed sense of humor — simply works better in women than it does in men."

"Where does it say that men have lousy right frontal brain lobes?" I asked with concern, quickly glancing back down at the article.

"It just implies it."

"Oh."

"Have you read the last paragraph yet?"

"No."

"Go ahead," she encouraged me, "it pretty much says it all."

I returned my eyes to the newspaper article and discovered that Ms. McFarling concluded her little report with the words, "I would hate to say that male humor is the humor of the impaired or the infantile, but since science seems to indicate this is true, how can we argue against it?"

"You know what I think your Ms. McFarling needs?" I asked my daughter.

"No. What?"

"A good pie in the face!"

With help from a $500 grant provided by the West Sacramento Education Foundation, the "Latino Family Literacy Program" is now offering a course in reading for kids in 6th through eighth grades and their parents.

Participants meet for 90 minutes on Thursday evening over an eight-week period ending April 10.

Goals in the program included teaching literacy, encouraging parental involvement in their children's schooling, and building early awareness of college as an option, reports teacher Alice Peralta of Westmore Oaks.

Other teachers in the program include Diane Evans, Nellie Plasencia, Alicia Mendez and Nick Harrigan.

Eighteen families are participating.

RCHS basketball players & coach named 'all league'

Several basketball players from River City High School have been honored as "all league" selections of the Sierra Valley Conference for their winter-season sports performance.

In boys basketball, the all-league honorees are Mike Briscoe, Richard DeSilva, Jalen Davis and Xaxier Francois.

In girls basketball, selections were led by "most valuable player" Tori Torres, and included fellow all-leaguers Carmen Garcia, Aliyah Brantley and Makaila Robinson.

The girls' coach, Jamie King, was named "Coach of the Year" for his sport by the conference. His Raider team went 24-5 for the regular season and was 12-0 in league play.

Education awards:

The Yolo County School Boards Association honored a number of educators throughout the county at its annual dinner on March 17.

From the Washington Unified School District in West Sacramento, the association singled out for excellence Julie Hoskins, an "ELD" and categorical programs administrator, and the "BEST" program, led by Jerry Smith.

For local efforts of the Los Rios Community College District, the association gave honors to chemistry professor Dr. Bruce Zenner at Sacramento City College and the college's program involvement in the West Sacramento Early College Prep Charter School. The college's involvement in the charter school is led by Elizabeth Altschule.

Awards were presented by State Senator Lois Wolk and Assembly Member Mariko Yamada.

Letters to the Editor

Move the new bridge

Since West Sacramento does not have its own hospital, Cal-Trans should postpone the W-X/I-80/Pioneer Bridge work and change from a Broadway/15th Street bridge to a Southport/South Sacramento bridge, especially since Broadway is only two blocks south of the W-X/I-80 Pioneer Bridge. Such action by both cities and Cal-Trans would reduce commute traffic time, pollution and would also reduce traffic on Pioneer Bridge and Tower Bridge. It would also allow our Southport neighbors and emergency vehicles quicker access to and from South Sacramento's hospitals. Compare that with the reduced access caused by lane closures, etc. of the present plans.

The logical choice seems clear.

When completed, I would give them a new one to do or tell them to help others who were struggling.

The true test of my leadership abilities occurred when waves of athletes finished running. As they came, I feared the runners receiving water and medals would crowd the exit for others. To prevent this from happening, I set up mini-stations along the cool-down path. This would allow the volunteers and me to distribute more and keep the runners moving. I was very proud of my handling of the situation, even when a few volunteers had to leave.

The staff also provided great support. They kept control of the crowd and maintained a steady pace of movement throughout the event. I was glad to see the volunteers and the staff working so well together. I want to thank the staff and other volunteers for collaborating with me. I know without them we wouldn't have done such a great job. Thank you to Blue Diamond Almonds as well, for putting together this charitable event.

Carol Bogart, an adult volunteer, adds:

A first year Interactor, student writer Danny Thirakul says he originally joined Interact Club at River City High School "for the community service hours." Then, he says, it was "so fun helping others in need with my Interact Club friends beside me" that he wishes he'd joined his Freshman year. He says, "If I could go back in time and run for a board position, I would do that as well." Danny describes Interact as "a phenomenal club." Danny and the other Interactor volunteers exemplify Rotary's motto: 'Service Above Self.' Through the Interact Club, Interactors like Danny become connected to the community and, in Danny's words, enhance their awareness of the difficulties of the world. River City High School's Interact Club is co-sponsored by Rotary Club of West Sacramento and the Centennial Rotary Club of West Sacramento. The Interact Club adviser is Charyl Silva, Rotary Club of West Sacramento. The Interact Club adviser at RCHS is Brandon Duff, who teaches English.

EDITOR'S NOTE: We are in contact with police officials regarding the problem of inappropriate removal of information from documents in the department's press book.

Although incident locations were deleted from reports concerning several thefts of catalytic converters in Southport, we have found mention of some of these, in addition to those named above in the log (Fillmore Place and Union Square Road).

These other locations include Monterey Court, Peppertree Road, Princeton Road and Coffeeberry Road.

It's our understanding that thieves of catalytic converters like to go to work at night, on cars with good ground clearance (like SUVs and some pickups, especially Toyotas). And they like to work where they won't be seen.

So you may wish to park those "target" cars in the garage if you can, or outside somewhere you can keep an eye on the side of the car that has the exhaust system.

Damage from these thefts ranges from the hundreds to the low thousands of dollars. It's especially expensive if the thieves saw through the exhaust pipes to grab the catalytic converter. If you're luckier, they'll just unbolt the converter.

The devices are often stolen for the value of rare metals inside.

Fashion show comes back to West Sacto

TIMOTHY WESTBOOK: gained fame on 'Runway' From Lori Aldrete for First 5 Yolo

Forget your Prada. Pack away your Armani. Come "Yolo County Style" and enjoy an evening with fashion designer and Project Runway contestant Timothy Westbrook as he brings his high energy and creative artistry to the Yolo County Children's Alliance Project Prevention 5th Annual Fashion Show Thursday, April 3, 2014 at 6 p.m. in the West Sacramento City Hall Galleria.

Local youth leaders and foster teens will model featured designs from Westbrook's three previous collections. Proceeds will support the Yolo County Children's Alliance and Child Abuse Prevention Council.

Westbrook, who hails from Wanakena, New York, was a contestant on Lifetime Network's hit show Project Runway during season 12 which aired the second half of 2013.

Reflecting on the fact that many children don't have the benefit of being raised in nurturing homes, Westbrook considers himself very lucky stating he grew up in an "incredibly nurturing home devoid of the typical 'angsty teenager' phase."

Speaking to why he wanted to be part of preventing child abuse in Yolo County, Westbrook said, "I have always been aware that not everyone has the upbringing my parents provided. If my heart, arms and talents/skills/gifts can be shared to help someone who doesn't have a strong support system, then that is what I am meant to do."

Noting that April is Child Abuse Prevention Month, Yolo County Supervisor and Chair of the Yolo County Children's Alliance Don Saylor said, "Each year the Yolo County Department of Employment and Social Services receives more than 1,000 reports of suspected child abuse and/or neglect. It is vital for us to create and fund programs that help parents and protect children; and that is what raising money for child abuse prevention is all about."

Katie Villegas, Yolo County Children's Alliance Executive Director said, "Timothy has generously offered to bring some of his amazing fashion designs to our event. It will be an exciting evening that showcases a nationally recognized designer, local youth models, and increases awareness and support for preventing child abuse in Yolo County."

Villegas also emphasized the need for a large turnout. "We hope at least 200 people will come to enjoy sophisticated fashion, tasty food, and hosted wine for those over 21, while raising vital dollars to combat child abuse and neglect in our communities. We need to raise at least $30,000 to ensure our programs will continue at their current levels."

Joining Westbrook and modeling some of the fashions on display will be his stylist partner, Alexis Rose of Alexis Rose Style, a child abuse survivor.

Emcee for the event will be Scott Moak, Sacramento Kings vice president of community impact and executive director of the Sacramento Kings Foundation. Moak also is the public address announcer for the Kings.

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"The Hobbit: The Desolation of Smaug" (PG-13) -- Bilbo Baggins (Martin Freeman) and his dwarf companions continue their quest to defeat a dragon and reclaim a kingdom in the second piece of the trilogy. When last we left Bilbo, he had just picked up the golden Ring from Gollum. Now the short crew continues through hostile elven woods, into the town of Lake-front, and then on to the Lonely Mountain for the first face-off with Smaug the dragon -- with a lot of cameos and action in between.

If the first film was all packing luggage and pointing at maps, then this film is all water-slides and daring escapes. The story includes much more Middle-Earth lore than Tolkien ever included in the novel. A new character, an elven huntress named Tauriel (Evangeline Lilly) is one of the more galvanizing additions.

"August: Osage County" (R) -- In a dusty old Oklahoma home, the dour relatives of the Weston family gather together in a time of hardship. This makes them easier targets for the acid-tongued, viper-eyed, knife-twistingly sadistic quips of the family's matriarch, Violet Weston (Meryl Streep). While all members of the family get their fill at the table, it's the oldest daughter, Barbara (Julia Roberts), who shows that she's learned the most from her mother.

This is pitch-dark comedy about the unbreakable bonds of family love, and how they can be used to suffocate one generation after another. The movie is adapted from a Pulitzer-Prize winning stage drama. Expect to be emotionally drained in exchange for a few laughs.

"Grudge Match" (PG-13) -- Robert De Niro and Sylvester Stallone star as boxers with a decades-old rivalry ripe for one last match. If you're expecting the dramatic equivalent of Raging Bull vs. Rocky, then you've played right into their hands, and you deserve the sucker punch. Billy "The Kid" McDonnen (De Niro) and Henry "Razor" Sharp (Stallone) were A-list prizefighters in their day, but each one has spent the past 30 years out of the ring. The son of a shady fight promoter (an electric Kevin Hart) gets the old timers to gear up for one last bout. What this movie lacks in heart (which is considerable) it tries to make up for with prostate jokes.

America of 1832 doesn't offer many opportunities for a girl to make her own way, so farm girl Alice is elated to snag a sought-after position in one of New England's new cotton mills. For the first time she is truly independent, earning her own money

Jesse (Andrew Jacobs) and his pal Hector (Jorge Diaz) are enjoying a summer of illicit fun in their native Los Angeles, when they decide to investigate the mysterious death of Jesse's downstairs neighbor. Turns out she was a witch, and she had a particular interest in Jesse, who starts to show symptoms of demonic possession. This spin-off of the popular horror franchise dabbles with a new setting and new mythology. The scares are the same ol' jump-out-of-your-seat shocks, though maybe less effective since they've become so predictable.

Fast Freezer Food

I consider my freezer my cold pantry. I keep it stocked with individual, quick frozen (IQF) fish, shrimp, beef and pork that I wash and season immediately after coming home from the grocery store. (This marinates the meat and saves time). I also stock frozen vegetables -- both pre-packaged and blanched veggies from spring and summer months -- "planned ahead" casserole meals for busy days, leftovers in old-school "TV dinner" plastic containers (perfect for the microwave), extra loaves of bread and sale items that are too much for the two of us to eat, but too good to pass up.

I also prepare and freeze appetizers for unexpected company, strawberries macerated in sugar, balsamic vinegar, vanilla and cinnamon to spoon over warm pound cake, and cookie and cake crumbs to sprinkle on ice cream for quick desserts.

Frozen food is a delicious way to capture the best flavors of each season. Although many people developed innovative food-freezing techniques, it was Clarence Birdseye who in 1924 invented the quick freezing method known as IQF that produces the frozen foods that we know today.

While working as a fur trader in Labrador, Canada, Birdseye discovered that the fish that he and the local Inuit caught froze almost immediately after being pulled from the water. He was delighted to discover that the fish was just as delicious when thawed out months later.

From this experience, he theorized that food must be frozen very quickly in order to retain its taste and texture. Birdseye was right. Before quick-freezing came along, foods were frozen at a fairly slow rate. This caused large ice crystals to form, which ruptured the cell membranes of the food. When the food was defrosted, the ice crystals melted and water would leak out, taking with it the food's flavor and texture.

Birdseye developed two methods for quick freezing foods, both of which employed the innovation of packaging the food beforehand. In the more popular technique, the packaged food was held under pressure between two hollow metal plates that were chilled to -25 F by the evaporation of ammonia. Using this method, a 2-inch-thick package of meat could be frozen to 0 F in about 90 minutes, while fruits and vegetables took about 30 minutes.

Birdseye's quick-freezing process ended up creating 168 patents! These covered not only the freezing technique, but also the packaging, type of paper used and related innovations.

Frozen foods are a delicious way to prepare a variety of dishes using fruits and vegetables that have been frozen at their peak of freshness. This recipe for Veggie Breakfast Cupcakes is the perfect "on the go" breakfast. It's also a delicious way to incorporate vegetables into a breakfast dish.

and able to spend her free time however she likes. And she's delighted to find a family in her fellow workers, especially the spirited Lovey, whose humor and boldness inspire all her fellow mill girls.

But mill work is hard and hours are long; dangerous machinery and even the scraps of floating cotton that fill the air constantly threaten life, limb and lungs. Fortright and outspoken, Alice soon becomes a voice for the rights of the mill girls. And for a while it seems like someone is actually listening: Samuel, the son of the mill owner, with whom she finds a surprisingly deep connection. But tragedy shatters this life when Lovey is found dead, an apparent suicide that is quickly found to be murder. Intent on justice for her friend, Alice determinedly defends her against all the sordid accusations and scandalous revelations of the ensuing trial, especially once a prominent member of the community is implicated. But the longer the trial continues, the more Alice feels the pain of her divided loyalties, until finally she must make a choice between her conscience and her heart.

"The Daring Ladies of Lowell" delves into elements of a little-known chapter of American history -- and a real-life murder trial -- to create an enthralling fictional tale of life in the rapidly changing social and economic landscape of 19th-century America. Life in this era was difficult for girls like Alice and Lovey, but the courage and zeal with which they pursued their own destinies is still an inspiration 200 years later.

A Petition for Probate has been filed by Dennis Lanni in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

The Petition for Probate requests that Dennis Lanni be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows: April 22, 2014, at 9:00 a.m. in Dept. 2, Superior Court of California, County of Yolo, 725 Court St., Room 308, Woodland CA 95695.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a "Request for Special Notice" (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale.
